

A Worship Discovery financial update for 2011

Hey Y'all,

I pray all is well with each of you and that your family's are well and prospering.

This missive is essentially a financial update for 2011.

2011 has been our most financially challenging year as a ministry.

As you have been following the reports DeWayne Smoak has been faithfully providing, I'm sure you have noticed some of our challenges.

When Pam and I moved from Georgia we were aware that it was a different season that would bring different challenges. One of those challenges has been the culture that surrounds us here in eastern North Carolina. Though the Lord seems to be making some "in-roads" for us in this region, it is a region with a "poverty" influenced culture. It really is a challenge for folks here to receive the goodness and provision of God and, of course, that misconception of our Lord has resulted in, if I may paraphrase our friend Ed Chinn, "Depression thinking gone to seed."

I'm expecting the Lord to send a revelation of worship to this area that will knock the lid off entrenched suspicion and mistrust of God and bring people into a place of love, grace and generosity. This appears to be part of my mission here.

I'm making you aware of the financial difficulties that you may have sufficient awareness to know how to pray for our mission.

I do have several invitations abroad this year (2012): Latvia, Holland and France as the Lord provides.

I continue working with Clark, building lockers for Fort Bragg, when he has work and play a few "bluegrass" dates from time to time (great mission field).

My "bluegrass" boys continue to meet at my house on Thurs. evenings to study worship together.

The Lord is beginning to open some doors for ministry locally for 2012.

Thank you for your prayers, encouragement (financial and otherwise) and friendship.

Love Y'all,

Karry (Ephes 2:10)
